Mid-Term Vacation Provides Co-Ed with Week of Thrills

A week's vacation in the Caribbean during mid-term week sounds unreal. However, Carol Workman, a junior from King City, Mo., traveled with her parents to the Bahamas, San Juan, Puerto Rico, Port Everglades, and Nasau from March 18-25.

From their home in King City, they drove to the Kansas City airport where they caught a plane for Fort Lauderdale. There, they boarded the "SS Hanseatic" which had 700 German crew members and 500 passengers.

On board ship Carol enjoyed various kinds of entertainment, including a dance team, a magician and others. At the Champaign Dance Hour, conducted by Ramon Lusinda, Carol won a bottle of champagne in a dance contest. Three regular meals and then a tea and a midnight cold buffet consisting of lobster, cold ham, turkey, were served on board. Carol remarked that fresh pineapple was her favorite food on the trip. Her mother couldn't say the same about the kangaroo tale soup she had. Lying on deck everyday, Carol got a fine tan, but because of our versatile Missouri weather, it faded fast.

"The Bahamas were beautiful with all the buildings in pastel colors against the green of the trees, and the sea," Carol stated.

Outside the port at Nasau she watched the native boys as they dived for the coins that the passengers threw over the side of the ship. Reaching Nasau, she and her family browsed around the block-long straw market where the "fat native women" sat in the streets and weaved their goods. Everything that can be made from straw could be purchased in the market, but most practical in the evening, because their captain suggested that the prices would go down when they started to leave. As Carol was shown Nasau in a horse-drawn cart, she was mostly impressed with the banana trees and the orderly shops and houses. She also noted that the rich estates were mingled right in with the little homes and poorer people.

"On our way back to the states the "SS Hanseatic" cruised along the coast of Cuba where we met an East German ship bearing a Communist flag, probably taking cargo to Cuba," Carol remarked.

Touring the world is exciting for Carol but she's not new at it for last year, during Easter vacation, she and her family went to Rome, Milan, and Venice. Then in 1963 her parents went to the French Riviera. All of these trips were made possible by General Electric Company who sponsors a sales promotion contest where those who make a certain quota win these foreign tours.

Carol's mid-terms were just beginning when the others had just finished, and she is still making up some of her tests; but most of us wouldn't mind facing that sacrifice for a cruise on the Caribbean.

To Sponsor Book Fair

Gamma Sigma Sigma and Alpha Phi Omega will jointly sponsor a book fair this year from April 20-23. There will be approximately 600 different selections available. The main supply will be located in the Gold Room of the union building and the display will be open from 8:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. daily. There will be a 10 per cent discount on the total sales of each person.

John Ciardi, Poet, Critic, and Scholar, to Visit Campus Tuesday

This coming Tuesday evening MSC students will have the opportunity to hear one of America's leading contemporary poets. John Ciardi, poet, critic and scholar, will give a public lecture at 8:15 p. m. in the auditorium. Admission will be ID card or activity ticket, or, for the general public, $1 for adults and $.50 for students.

According to Dr. Frank Grube, chairman of the division of languages and literature, Ciardi enjoys nothing better than a good intellectual brawl. In an interview on KFEQ-TV, Dr. Grube pointed out the controversial nature of the speaker and urged that the public attend. Dr. Grube has heard Ciardi previously and testifies to his ability as an interesting speaker.

Ciardi is probably best known as the poetry editor of Saturday Review. In addition to his editorial duties, he writes a regular column, "Manner of Speaking," which may or may not deal with poetry. In recent issues he has ranged from a discussion of why books should not be banned to a condemnation of the U. S. Navy for refusing to let a pilot with artificial legs fly.

The aura of controversy which surrounds Ciardi can best be measured by the tone of the letters to the editor which his columns inspire. While the letters range from vitriolic condemnation to effusive praise, they are seldom neutral.

Ciardi is no stranger to this area. He is a former professor of English at Kansas City University (now UMKC). Since that time he has held other teaching posts, including professor of English at Rutgers. In addition to his journalistic duties, he is active in writers' conferences during the summer months.

The appearance of Ciardi is a major part of the Fine Arts Festival.

Sociology Meet Attracts MSC-ers

Three students from MSC, Earline Ijams, Lenore Smith, and Joyce Ridge, participated in a conference of undergraduate Sociology students on the campus of Washington University in St. Louis on Mar. 27.

A paper entitled "Influence of Greeks on Campus," written by Earline Ijams and Lenore Smith, was read by Miss Ijams at the conference. The report was a project of a sociology class and prepared under the direction of Miss Gayle Cates, instructor in the Division of Social Science.

The study was an investigation of the relationship between membership in fraternities and sororities and positions of leadership on campus. A sample of over 900 students listed their estimate of which persons were the top ten leaders on campus, and then it was found that almost all of these individuals were members of Greek organizations.

Miss Gayle Cates and Dr. and Mrs. James L. Lowe accompanied the students to the conference.

College to Found Honors Program

A long standing policy of this college has been to give recognition to students with outstanding scholastic achievements via the Dean's List. This recognition is lacking because the majority of the remaining students on campus do not care who the academically outstanding individuals are. This is because the only means of finding out who the students are is to read the one issue of the which published the Dean's List. This means of recognizing outstanding students is highly inadequate, according to Mr. Floyd Barrows, Social Science Dept.

The committee for the Foundation of an Honors Program has been appointed to the task of furthering the policy of this college in reference to scholastic achievements. The committee, under the direction of Mr. Barrows, will hold a banquet in honor of the students who have proved themselves academically outstanding. The banquet will be held May 7 and will be high-lighted by the presentation of various honor awards to members on the Dean's Honor List.

Library Notice

The Instructional Materials Bureau schedule for the remainder of the current semester will be 8:30-12:00, 1:00-4:30 and 6:30-9:30 Monday through Friday and 9:00-12:00 on Saturday morning according to Mr. Luke Boone, director.

Several pairs of women's gloves have been found by the janitor in Colden Hall. Anyone who has lost a pair of gloves may claim them in CH-109.

UGLY ONES . . . Not really, but Roger Schlegel and Mr. Bruce Wake captured the most votes in the annual APO Ugly Man on Campus contest. Schlegel sported his visage for student honors, and Wake won out over his fellow faculty members.

Named MSC Board Of Regents Head

Garvin R. Williams, Maryville, was named president of the Northwest State College board of regents Monday in its first meeting since recent appointments to the board.

Williams, co-owner of the Williams Lawn Seed Co. here, at one time was superintendent of Gentry County public schools and served as principal of Eugene Field School from 1944-46. He was graduated from Northwest State College with a BS degree and a life diploma, and he received his MA degree from Colorado State College of Education. In rounding out his education, he did graduate work at the University of Southern California.

Williams, a Democrat, is serving his second, 6-year term on the MSC board.

C. F. Russell, Trenton, was named vice president of the board Monday. Other board members are William Phares, Jr., Maryville, who was recently appointed by Gov. Warren Hearnes; W. M. C. Dawson, Grant City; J. P. (June) Morgan, Chillicothe; and David Hopkins, St. Joseph.

2 Schools to Represent Area in State Contest

The High School Debate Contest last weekend resulted in North Kansas City winning a 1 rating in debate and a 1 rating for the short play presented. Smithville also received a 1 rating for the short play it presented. These two high schools will represent Northwest Missouri in the State Debate Contest.

To Speak at Honors Banquet

Guest speaker for the Honors Banquet to be held May 7 will be Dr. John Ruff. Dr. Ruff, author of several books on education, is a leading figure in the North Central Accrediting Association and has been the doctoral chairman of many of the leading educators throughout the United States.

More Views on Class Cuts

Dear Editors:

Recently there have been several articles and letters in this paper concerning the policy of "cutting" classes. I feel that to answer this question a more basic one must be discussed: What is the purpose of a college?

Since Aristotle the classical concept of education has been that the school is for the benefit of the student, not the faculty or the administration. In John Henry Cardinal Newman's book, Idea of a University, this belief was greatly reinforced and applied to the modern world. In the classical tradition the faculty's job has been to give to the student an understanding of the subject matter. The teacher is supposed to be subservient to the student, to help him to learn.

The universities of Southern Europe, such as the University of Bologna, were begun by students, they banded together and hired the teachers. The duty of the administration has traditionally been to take care of those functions of the school for which the students, who are its logical leaders, do not have the time or the technical skill. The administration should handle managerial details, not set policy for an individual's conscience.

The concept of the administration being a second father and mother to the student seems to have originated in the monastic schools of the Middle Ages where all the students were studying to be clergymen and were logically subservient to their administrators and faculty, whose rank in the monastic order was superior to theirs. This same paternal concept was carried on in this country by its early colleges which, almost without exception, were religious schools.

I have come to school to learn. If I can get this education without attending classes whose failure is it mine or the teachers? Perhaps it is not a failure at all, but rather a fulfillment. I want to be stimulated, to learn, to explore, to mature my mind. If the teacher is succeeding in helping me achieve these goals am I likely to purposely miss that which is my purpose in being here?

If he is failing should I be forced to attend his insipid lectures? Which is more important, the instructor or the education? There are thousands of books which can teach better than fifty minutes of monotonous mumbling. In the same time that I spend taking one page of assorted tidbits of information I can read fifty pages of a book. And if on tests I can show that I have an understanding of the material then have I not demonstrated that I have fulfilled my purpose in being here — to learn?

There are many people who have never been to college who possess knowledge that far surpasses that of any doctor on this and on many other compasses. These self-educated men have demonstrated that attending classes is not a prerequisite to knowledge. The University of Chicago has a program where simply by paying fees and taking the tests a person may be granted a degree.

In an editorial in the paper of March 23, it was mentioned that the taxpayers of Missouri pay 85 per cent of the costs of this school and that they expect a return on their investment. However, by giving to the student the freedom to follow his own conscience both in college and the taxpayers will be aided. When a person misses a class and uses his time to learn then it is a betterment for him and for those around him to whom he can import this newly discovered knowledge.

If instead, he is spending his time playing cards or watching Bwana Don on television, then it is a loss to him and those like him. He will not bother the serious student. Only those like himself will seek his company (and if you walk through the den very much you will see these persons there often, but usually for only one semester — for even if they do manage to pass with high enough grades to stay in school their lack of ambition will usually keep them from returning).

The above are my personal beliefs and prejudices. I am sure there may be discrepancies in some of my reasoning. If anyone can point out some of these discrepancies I wish that he would refrain from doing so. My ego is easily hurt and I dislike public embarrassment.

Sincerely yours,
 Frank Connaghan

Mr. Saucerman, English Instructor

Mr. James Saucerman came to MSC from Scotts Bluff, Nebraska, where he taught high school English and beginning French. This is his third year as an English instructor at MSC.

Mr. Saucerman is a native of Colorado and grew up on a ranch east of Colorado Springs. His wife is also from Colorado and lived on a neighboring ranch. She is now a student at MSC. The Saucermans have a son who attends Horace Mann Jr. High.

Mr. Saucerman received his A. B. and M. A. from Colorado State College and is currently working on his Ph. D. during the summer months at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Among his outside interests, Mr. Saucerman lists geology, fishing, and hunting; but adds that like everyone else he cannot find all the time he would like for them. The National Council of Teachers of English, the Emerson Society, and Phi Delta Kappa claim Mr. Saucerman's membership.

Mr. Saucerman reports that he and his family have never lived this far East, but he continues that they enjoy this section of the country very much. Mr. Saucerman concludes that he enjoys teaching college courses much more than the high school routine.

Send In Your Tid-Bits

Campus organizations, here comes your opportunity to have reports of social events and other happenings appear in the college newspaper. Jot down April 30.

Now and then we get complaints from a campus group that their news releases do not appear often enough to suit them in the Northwest Missourian. It usually goes something like this, "How come you never give us any recognition. Last week the Signa Phi Nothings got three more lines of print than we did."

Staff policy (again), as related to campus organizations, cannot allow space in each edition to print a follow-up on every smoker, rush party, picnic, and beer blast that occurs. The major reason for this policy is simply a lack of space in a four-page edition, plus the following question:

Just how important is it to how many readers that some organization held a smoker or other event? How important is the fact that the room was decorated with pink posies and dandelions? The same goes for the fact that gum-drops and pickles were served as refreshments.

After all, if the event has already happened, the people who were there know what occurred, what they ate and/or drank. Most likely, those who are not associated with the particular organization really don't give a darn anyway. Right?

We do, however, honor most newsworthy copy, such as an article which appeared in the March 26 edition, concerning a sorority's presentation of a performance which could have interested more people than just those within that organization.

Considered for next year is a four-day-a-week dittoed information sheet with organizational announcements and general news. These sheets would then be posted on bulletin boards all over the campus.

Generally speaking, if an organization cannot plan well enough to alert (or warn) members of an approaching meeting, then maybe the break-down in communication lies within the organization.

If the print shop feels we need additional copy to fill the pages, then consideration of such organization news (???) is made. No intentional unfairness to any group is made by either the print shop or the editors.

On April 30, however, because of the second semester Literary Edition, we will publish an 8-pager. So send in your stories if you wish. We'll try to get them all in.

Here's your big chance to publicize your all-important weiner roast or dandelion-picking contest. Don't forget, now, April 30.

We must have the articles typed and in the office by 10 a. m. Monday, April 26, no later. No pencil on tissue paper either. They do tear so easily.

College to Adopt New Policy Concerning Parking for Next Fall; Students to Register Cars Now

It has been announced from the offices of the Dean of Administration and the Dean of Students that a new policy concerning parking privileges on campus will go into effect starting with the fall semester of 1965.

In order to avoid inequities in registration for lots, those students who are on the campus this semester will have first opportunity to register for available parking spaces. This will be done during the months of April and May starting with the next year senior class. From April 19 through the 24, any Senior can register his car for a parking space. With the exception of students living in residence halls, seniors will have a choice of parking lots. Juniors will register during the week of April 26 through May 1st, and the Sophomores from May 3rd through May 8. After May 8, any student who did not register during the prescribed periods may register for the remaining parking spaces. Lot 2 will continue to be a Visitor and Staff lot.

The cost of such parking privileges will be changed to $10 per semester and $5 during the 1966 summer school session. Registration will take place each semester on a basis similar to that outlined above. Advanced registration will take place outside the Dean of Students office during the dates listed above.

By this means it is anticipated that the college will be able to provide a more adequate enforcement service, better lot maintenance and repair, and where land is available more parking spaces. This change has been necessitated by the significant increase in the proportion of the student body who have requested lot registrations.

It is anticipated that violators will be dealt with more severely and will be more consistently apprehended. It will then be possible to offer greater assurance that students will be able to find parking spaces in their assigned lot.

All students who bring a car or who are driving a car while a student of MSC will still be required to register that car as in the past. The registration fee will be 50c for clerical costs involved, and replacement of all lost or changed registration stickers will cost the student $2.00 unless the cause is because of circumstances beyond their control.

Cardinal Key Salutes Miss Schmidt, Honor Student

Cardinal Key Co-ed for the month of April is Miss Sharon Schmidt, a senior with a double major of history and English. Miss Schmidt has a grade point of 3.87.

Sharon has been chosen for this honor on the basis of her overall contributions to MSC. A member of SNEA for three years, she has served as both treasurer and secretary. For activities during Religious Emphasis Week, Sharon was elected chairman of the Organizational Appointments Committee. As a member of MSEA she has served as state historian. She has belonged to Kappa Delta Phi for two years and has served as president of the organization.

Gamma Sigma Sigma service sorority has claimed Sharon's membership for three years. She is also on the alternate list for a fellowship at Indiana University. Future plans for Sharon include teaching and possibly attending graduate school.
